

Maggie is a full time art education student at Kendall College of Art and Design. She has a focus in drawing, but also loves watercolor, paper making, and sculpture. She has a B.A. in Art History from Albion College. After graduation Maggie interned at the Art Institute of Chicago in the Photography Collections, but felt pulled to art education. Maggie was the School Programs intern at the Grand Rapids Art Museum and now works in the studio. As the School Programs intern, Maggie wrote the curriculum for ArtPrize Seven, led the workshop sessions, and curated the corresponding student exhibition. She was a camp counselor during the summer months and helped coordinate a week long Design Thinking camp session. Maggie also taught at Saugatuck Center for the Arts as a Growing Young Artist Instructor.
